

How to follow a child's progress in the Reading Kingdom

The Reading Kingdom offers an extensive report that allows you to view specific information on the results for each level in the program and each word a child learns. Here's how you do it.

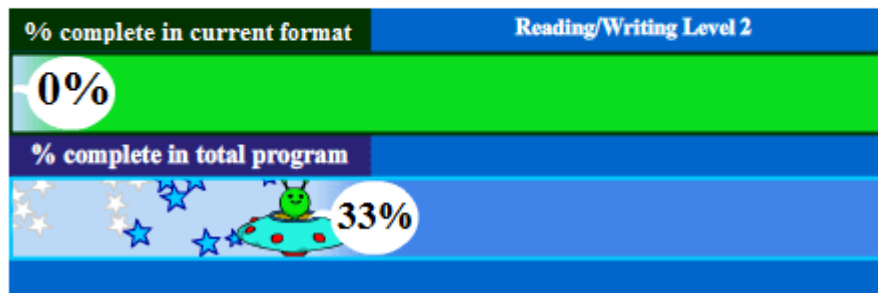

1. Log in to your Reading Kingdom account and click on the reader whose progress you want to follow. Scroll down to the Reader Report section. Here you'll see how much a reader has progressed through the entire program and where a reader is in the specific format he or she is currently learning.

Most of the icons above are self-explanatory. If you see a “needs attention” icon, observe what the reader is doing for the next lesson or two and then contact us if you need assistance. This icon typically appears if a reader is not paying attention during the lessons. The “not required” icon indicates that a reader already knew the material and consequently skipped the section. Remember that the Reading Kingdom is completely customized to each child, so each child will have a slightly different experience moving through the program.

- You can continue to click further into the report to get more detailed information. For instance, if you click on the link to the book you will see how well a reader is doing with each word taught as part of learning that book.
